Valedictory Address of Mr. C. G. Wintersmith, Speaker of the House.

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives: We have at length arrived at that point in the history of our proceedings when the decision upon the vote just taken will dose the legislative action of this General Assembly. I cannot pronounce that decision without tendering to ou my congratulations upon the unusual and distinguished manner in which you have achiev to the patient labor with which you have pe formed the high duties imposed upon you your constituency. . I am satisfied that this Leg islature has won for itself the high distinction of having been eminently assiduous and har monious in the discharge of its functions. trust your faithful labors will be crowned with the successful advancement of the best interests of the people of a beloved Commonwealth — Some of us may have been disappointed with the refusal of some measures which we deemed for the best, and with the adoption of others we deprecated; but I think we have, in a general review, good reason to hope and believe that the large preponderance of our action has been for the promotion of the public welfare.

Much of your attention has been turned to the amelioration of the helpless and afflicted. You have generously made liberal appropriations out of the abundant treasuries of a magnanimous people for the comfort and proper treatment of those who are bereft of the capacity necessary for the proper care of themselves, and of those who are deprived of the power of speech and of sight. You have generously contributed to bestow a significant language and cultivation upon the dumb-and learning, and consolation, and contentment, and happiness, upon blind orphanage. For these things you merit the benevolent admiration of humanity. In all the walks of life, it seems to me that there is noth ing more consoling to the heart, more approved and delightful to the conscience, or more noble in man, than doing good to others in the various forms of relief which may be suggested to our sympathies. It is not only noble, but it is Godlike, to lift up the lowly, the weary, and the forlorn, in life's great highway. When John the Baptist sent a messenger to Jesus to know if he were the Christ, his reply was—"Go tell John that the sick are healed, the leper is cleansed that ame walk the blund see the dumb read ed, the lame walk, the blind see, the dumb speak. the dead are brought to life and the poor have the gospel preached to them." This was the only argument—these the facts adduced by the Savior of mankind to prove his divinity.

Your attention has been turned to the great interests of the education of our youth, and firally believing that those who are to be our successors should be thoroughly and practically educated-educated in mind and in heart, so that they may fully comprehend the genius of our in stitutions and love them with the fervency of the most patriotic devotion—and believing that the nursery and the school house are at last the palladium of republican perpetuity—I rejoice that our people will shortly have the proud satisfac tion of manifesting their willingness to add yet more of their substance to the promotion of the great cause of popular instruction.

Our people have lately become aroused to the C.G. Wintersmith, Spr. Elizabethtown. vast importance of investigating the geological and mineralogical resources of the State. From Thomas Alexande this we may anticipate the most gratifying results. It is to be hoped that these enterprizes may be secuted with becoming caution, and so carried Joseph M. Gregory, out that disastrous consequences may not follow extravagant and ill advised schemes, but con summated with prudence and calculating fore sight that they may redound in eminent good. So far as we are concerned, it is gratifying that this House has afforded all the aid, which in prudence Roger W. Hanson,

Louis Napoleon's Letter to the Emperor of Russia. In the London Times of the 15th we find a translation of the letter addressed by Louis Napoleon to the Czar. It is as follows: PALACE OF THE TUILLERIES.

January 29, 1854. Sire: The difference which has arisen be tween your Majesty and the Ottoman Porte has assumed such a grave aspect that I think it right myself to explain directly to your Majesty the part which Frange has taken in this question, and the means which suggest themselves to me in order to avoid the dangers which menace the endeavors to prove that it was the system of pressure adopted from the commencement by e two maritime powers which alone involved the question in bitterness. On the contrary, acording to my view, the matter would have con tinued a Cabinet question if the occupation of the two Principalities had not suddenly transterred it from the region of discussion to that of fact. Nevertheless, although your Majesty's troops had entered Wallachia, we advised the Porte not to consider that occupation as a war like act, thus proving our extreme desire for conciliation. After I had consulted with Engand, Austria, and Prussia, 1 proposed to yo Majesty a note, designed to give satisfaction to all. Your Majesty accepted it. We had hard by, howevery, been informed of this good news when your Minister, by explanatory commenta ries, destroyed all the conciliatory effects of it, and thus prevented us from insisting at Constantinople upon its pure and simple adoption. The Porte, for its own part, suggested some modifications in the note, to which the repre-sentatives of the four Powers at Vienna were not indisposed to agree. They were not, how ever, agreed to by your Majesty. It was then that the Porte, wounded in its dignity, its independence threatened, and being compelled to raise an army to oppose that of your Majesty, preferred to declare war rather than remain in a state of uncertainty and humility. The Porte our support; the cause of the Port appeared to us to be a just one, and the English the Bosphorus

Our autitude in reference to Turkey was that of a protector, but it was passive. We did not incite her to war. We unceasingly addressed to the ears of the Sultan the advice of peace and moderation, persuaded that this was the lest mode of coming to an agreement, and the Four Powers consulted together again and sub ntted to rour Majesty some other propositions Your Majesty, on your part, exhibiting the calmness which arises from the consciousness of strength, contented yourself with repulsing from the left bank of the Danube, as in Asia, Attest: the attacks of the Turks, and, with the moderation worthy of the chief of a great empire your Majesty declared that you would act or he defensive. Up to that period, then, we were I may say, interested spectators, but simply spectators of the dispute, when the affair of Si France and England had not thought it neces sary to send troops to the assistance of Turkey. Their flag, therefore, was not engaged in the con flicts which took place upon land. But at sea it was very different. There were at the entrance to the Bosphorus 3,000 guns, the exist-Turkey that the two leading maritime Powers The affair at Sinope was as painful for us as it was unexpected, for it matters little to us whether or not the Turks wished to convey munitions of war to the Russian territory. In fact, Rus sian ships attacked Turkish vessels in the waters of Turkey, while those vessels were riding quietly at anchor in the Turkish port.

The Turkish vessels were destroyed in spite mence an aggressive war, and in spite of the vicinity of our squadrons. It was no longer our policy which received a check—it was our military honor. The sound of the cannon shot at Smope reveberated painfully in the hearts of all those who in England and in France respect national dignity. There was a general partici pation in the sentiment that wherever our can n can reach our allies ought to be respected. Out of this feeling arose the order given to our squadron to enter the Black Se, and to prevent, by force if necessary, the recurrence of a similar Thence arose the collective notification sent to the Cabinet of St. Petersburg, announce ing that if we prevented the Tarks from making an aggressive war upon the coasts of Russia, we would also protect the Turks upon their territory. As to the Russian fleet, in prohibiting its navigation of the Black Sea, we placed it apon a different condition because it was im portant during the war to preserve a guarante equivalent in force to the occupation of the Turkish territory, and thus facilitate the conlasion of peace by having the power of making desirable exchange.

Such, sire, is the real result and a statement back, sire, is the real result and a statement across the control of the of the facts. It is clear that, having arrived at this point, they must either bring about a definitive understanding or a decided rupture.

Attention is directed toward Austria, which is called by her position to play an active and important part. Austria has always declared herself with great firmness in favor of points which were established in the protocol of the conference of Vienna of the 5th of December We have every confidence in the loyalty and chivalrous character of the young Emperor of Austria; we find also a guarantee of the distranquility of Europe.

The note which your Majesty has just sent to my Government, and to that of Queen Victoria, our own.

In the general circumstances of European policy, France, strong in virtue of her loyal and disinterested intentions, has nothing to dread from the struggle which is preparing. She knows, moreover, that she may rely on the energy as much as on the wisdom of the Empe

This answer of the Emperor of Russia was brought by a courier of the French embassy at St. Petersburg. From this moment we may expect to hear of the embarkation of troops at Toulon. It is again stated as certain that Prince Napoleon Jerome will be appointed to the chief command of the expeditionary force.
